"Any student of internal war" I wrote a year ago "can rattle off the script from here on in. The army, acting on ludicrously inadequate intelligence, catches the wrong people in its net as security forces ever will. IRA moderates and extremists close ranks under pressure, opinion rallies to the insurgent cause.

"The scale and scope of ter rorist attacks increase. The army is reinforced. The spiral of reprisal climbs to a new plateau of violence as terror begets counter-terror. What the authorities intend to be a replay of Malaya turns into a replay of Algeria—with no de-Gaulle in sight.'

Not even a melancholy sat-isfaction derives from observ-ing how faithfully events have followed this depiction.

One Week to Crush IRA

A militant Protestant spokesman in Belfast said today the British army has one week to wipe out the IRA - or eise.

If troops fail to meet the ultimatum, the spokesman for the Ulster Defence Association said, his group will institute its own solution to the strife that has seen 469 persons die in three years.

The strategy would be simple: "We will send teams into Roman Catholic areas and kill every IRA man we find,"

He told a midnight news conference the UDA knows the identity of the bombers and gunnen and would eliminate them in "seek and destroy operations."

The threat came after the Provisional Wing of the IRA claimed responsibility for a string of Belfast bombs that killed 18 persons and wounded 130 others Eriday.

On-Saturday, gunmen shot and killed five more persons all Catholics

In reaction to the Friday blasts, troops continued to search IRA strongholds, uncovering an explosives factory and arresting 100 suspects.

A British spokesman said the factory, believed to have been used to make the Friday bombs, contained 400 pounds of explosives. 45 detonators, three bombs, 1,000 bullets and a

U.S. Hit Dikes, Waldheim Says

UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, who returned Sunday night from Moscow, said today he had unofficial re-ports that United States ombs have cracked dikes in North Vietnam.

"I can only say that if it is true that it leads to disaster, thousands of persons will have died. This must be avoided," Waldheim said.
Waldheim said even if the mass were not targets for U.S. warplanes, the bombs felloose they damaged and

The Pentagon has denied the dikes have been targeted by American fighter-bombers and said if any were hit it was an accident.

Waldheim said his informa-tion was unofficial and came through "private channels." "This is Hanoi information

SUFFERING

"If indeed, dikes were being bombed, I appeal to stop this type of bombing which can lead to such enormous suffering," he said.

Earlier the U.S. had denied statements by actress Jane Fonda that she had seen bombed-out dikes during a tour of North Vietnam. In Vienatm, South Vietnam-

In the air war, American jets nombed the southern sector of Hanoi Sunday for the second successive day, setting a battery plant on fire and starting a dozen explosions, the U.S. command reported.

WALLS BREACHED

Government paratroops in Quang Tri pushed through a hail of North Vietnamese ar-lillery on the approaches to the Citadel, then encountered withering fire through two breaches in the 40-foot walls of the 19th-century fortress.

REYKJAVIK (UPI) — Defending world champion Boris Spassky Sunday watched Bobby Fischer walk away from the chess board and then joined the 3,000 spectators in applicate.

Spassky had just resigned at the 41st move of the sixth game of their contest for the world chess championship. The win gave the Fischer, the challenger, a 3½ to 2½ point lead in the battle, which could go to 24 games.

It was a game of which legend is made. In 41 moves the 29-year-old New Yorker had demolished the world champion and the crowd went wild.

The seventh match is scheduled for Tuesday with Spassky playing white, meaning he has the first move.

The finale of the sixth game had the crowd-hushed in tense silence. With the cool and precision of a computer. Fischer had caught his opponent by surprise playing a new opening.

When he completed the 41st move, German referee Lothar Schmid came up to the table with a slip of paper in case Spassky wanted to seal his move and adjourn the game to

But the position was hopeless and the 35-year-old Leningrad journalist knew it. For six minutes he gazed at the board, leaned back and then forward again.

Finally he grabbed his pench, scribbled "resigned" in the protocol, stopped his clock and offered Fischer his hand.

Without a trace of emotion, Fischer accepted the shake, got up and was gone.

Eighteen hours earlier Fischer had walked out through the same curtains after once again vetoing the presence

His decision was taken after a three-hour inspection trip in the middle of the night.

Chet Forte, the producer in charge of filming the $250,000 "Match of the Century," said Fischer "was like a kid in a toyshop" during the inspection four.

"He sat behind the cameras, peeped through the small holes above the board and spent 20 minutes in deep concentration over the board with no pieces while we filmed. There was no trace of noise, but he refused to give in. It's the presence of a cameraman that bugs him," Forte said.

"But we should be in by Tuesday," he added. Gudmundur Thorarinsson, president of the Icelandic Chess Federation, said "if Fischer has not agreed by Tues-day, we will cancel the contract and drop the matter. We are tired of this on-and-off farce: We'll lose money, but it's also a question of principle."

Long line-ups and frustrating delays at B.C. ferry terminals, particularly at Tsawwassen, in recent days have brought to public notice once again the problems faced by the service during peak tourist periods. Available vessels and schedules have failed to cope with the difficulty in a way to move truffic expeditiously between the mainland and the Island.

The situation has brought forward an earlier suggestion that congestion might be relieved if B.C. Ferries moved the bulk of its truck freight on night runs, leaving more space for motorists in the daylight hours when most people prefer to travel. As a development of this proposal, Herbert Bruch, Social Credit member hooking for renomination in Esquimat, has actvanced the suggestion that Premier Bennett seek Tederal aid for the construction of a special new craft designed to need night-time justifies the request for federal assistance on the grounds that Varconver Island is entitled to a *24-hour highway link with the rest of Canada" - a contention which most islanders will consider

Recently, however, there has accepted the arbitrator's decree.

It can be argued that the delays of recent days constitute an emergency. The question automatiruly arses: How long does a recurring stituation remain an emergency? The difficulties experienced by the ferries in conine with heavy summer traffic have arisen year after year. By now some satisfactory solution should have been tlevisietl.

The present administration has earned warm plaudits for institutmg the ferry run between the northern end of the Saanich pennsula and the lower maniland - a service for which many cannaigned before the advent of Social Credit in British Columbia. Mr. Bennett has received full marks for giving the public what it wansed. He put the boats on the run-Now the service acens too ready to rest on the pars. Someone should be stepping up the stroke. Otherwise the ferries will continue to fall behind requirements.

British Example

The resignation of Resimalit Maudling, Britain's Home Secretary, and imofficial deputy prime minister, devestating as it is to some and desolating to others, serves once again to emphasize a armente followed in the Mother of Parliaments.

Mr. Maudling stepped out of office when a police investigation was ordered into the affairs of a firm with which he had been associated prior to divesting himself of private business connections upon entering the cabinet.

Whether or not the British calmet member was careless ar inprudent in such associations is not immediately apparent: The fact that his name was linked with the firm which came under police investigation was evidently enough for the minister to follow tradefional practice and resign.

The case is notable in our part of the world not specifically been cause of the earlier hustness concerns of Britain's Hone Secretary, but because of the procedure be has followed. The suggestion of impropriety appears to have been sufficient to cause traditional reaction. The example should not be overlooked closer to home.

BAGANDOU, Central African Republic — Camille Belet, an African planter, owns 22 pygmies. He inherited them from his father and will leave them and their children to his son with the rest of his property

In the equatorial forest around this market town of 4,000 inhabitants, the pygmies are not counted with the population. They have no possessions and no

Bagandou is "a good Christian village," but nothing has been done for the surrounding pygmies, according to a French priest, the Rev. Philippe Reynaert, who worked for three years in the area south of M'Baiki in the southwestern corner of the republic.

"One day I asked my African Chris tians to pray for the pygmies and they burst out 'laughing.' Father Reynsert said with shame, adding. "The Africans consider pygmies sub-human."

The basic problem for the church is that a missionary cannot work with both at the same time, the 33-year-old priest explained. Recently, however, a French Catholic missionary was assigned to Nola, west of here, and will work exclusively with the pygmies.

The pygmies of the Central African Republic belong to the Babinga race, which is found in the vast forest zone this area estimate that there are 25,000 tribesmen in the region. Their features are Negroid, with flat nose, broad forehead and large eyes. They generally go naked, except for a few leaves or string and a piece of cloth.

Most belong to African planters. They do the heavy work, clear the bush, cut down trees and help with the planting and harvest.

"My pygmies go to the forest to hunt for three to six months a year but they always come back," said Belet, who owns coffee and corn plantations on the outskirts of Bagandou.

The pygmy laborers are submissive mveti, or owner, and show no sign of discontent

"I work because the master gives us sait and cigarettes," one of Belet's pygmies said, adding that he had left his wife and children in the forest, He spoke in Dimbenga, the pygmy lan-guage, which most African planters

Asking the African planters if the pygmies went to school was like asking if they had gone to the moon.

"The pygmies are afriaid of sunlight and don't like to bring their families out of the forest." Guy Boukaman, a plant-er, explained.

Boukaman owns 14 acres of farmland in the Bagandou woods and a large number of pygmies but he would not specify how many. Most planters are afraid of taxes.

The pygmies live in small round huts made of branches and leaves and sleep on pieces of bark. When the insects get too much for them, they build another roots, bananas and other local fruit and game. They generally suffer from severe malnutrition, tuberculosis and malaria and die young.

Very slowly, however, change is beginning to penetrate the Central African forest. A few pygmies have settled down in hamlets along forest roads.

These "civilized pygmies" build permanent houses with mud and sticks, like their African neighbors. They are beginning to wear clothes—shorts or a skirt—and some eventually put on shirts. Pygmy women have borne the children of African men to create a mixed race. mixed race, Nevertheless, even the "civilized pygmies" are considered lesser beings by Africans.

"We could not think of allowing pyg-mies—even with clothes—into church because they smell so bad," Francois Goncalo, a gardner for a lumber com-pany, said.

Berneard Mapkiapemon, an African coffee farmer, lives with a pygmy woman and they have a daughter but year-old Mapkiapemon said. "They want me" to marry an African woman. I'm saving money for a dowry now.'

An African wife is expensive $80 to $100-but a pygmy woman costs nothing... Til keep my pygmy woman, Marguerite, even after I marry an African, "Mapkiapemon sald.

He lives in a hamlet inhabited by "civilized pygmies" on the main forest track, 20 miles south of M'Baiki. About half the pygmies here wear clothes and life a fairly sedentary life. The men still go hunting but usually for an Afri-can patron, who pays them up to 80 cents for an antelope.

The Central African Republic, burdened with problems of underdevelopment and illiteracy among the 2,000,000 or so African citizens, has paid little heed to the pygmy population.

The Ministry of Tourism, however, has brought small groups of pygmies out of the forest occasionally to dance and give their lovely bird-like yodel forvisitors.

"We can't do much with the little people because basically they're not in-terested in money and would rather stay in the woods," a French travel

The only apparent move by the government to introduce civilization to the pygmies is a public notice affixed to the M'Baiki post office that bans "the promenade of naked pygmies in town." Planters with pygmies in their charge are warred that court action will be are warned that court action will be taken if they allow "anyperson of this type to walk through town wearing only

The Real World Outside the Hall

By ANTHONY LEWIS New York Times

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. While they last, the dramas of an American political convention seem overwhelmingly important to those concerned. But the world goes on outside, the reality that will eventually face the politicians.

During the Democrats' week in Miami The New York Times published three stories that sharply reminded us of that outside world. They suggested some of the painful realities with which any President will have to deal.

One article bore the head-line, "Jersey Black-White Income Gap Widens." It de-scribed census findings for eight New Jersey counties near New York City. As the headline-indicated, the figures showed that between 1960 and 1970 suburban areas of predominantly white population increased their already large margin of affluence over black urban areas.

In Newark, now a black-majority city, medium family income rose from $5,454 to $7,750 during the decade a gain of 42 per cent. In nearby Montclair, a mixed and not particularly rich suburban-community, the figure went from $8,500 to $14,500 — up 71

The headline on the second piece read; "Gap Between Rich And Poor Nations Widens Steadily." In the de-veloping countries of the world, the story said, per ca-pita industrial and agricul-tural output increased 27 per cent between 1960 and 1970. In

The third article, orters See Battered Town In forth." It described a visit to Hungyen, 36 miles east of Hanoi, which was said to have been hit by American bombs the day before. The corre-

That is the hard reality about which a radical opposition candidate for President of the United States ought to educate his country. How effectively will George McGovern do so?

McGoyern has a clear view on the war: For longer than just about any of us he has understood what that savagery for dubious political ends is costing the U.S. No cries of treason from John Connally or anyone else trying to out-Agnew Agnew are likely to deflect McGovern from his killing in Southeast Asia.

But it is harder to get a but it is namer to get a feeling of George McGovern on what are, after all, the deeper, longer-tun problems: the two nations within Afferi-ca, the two worlds of rich and poor on this one planet.

He has talked a good deal about income redistribution in the U.S. But his plans have about them the smell of the lamp — an artificiality that weakens their conviction. He has had little to say about a new role for the U.S. in a world divided less between ideologies than between rich

One thoughtful reformist Democrat, a man who will certainly support McGovern, said the other day that he worried about avoiding the hard questions.
"We are in danger of getting just a different kind of pie in the sky," he said - promises of more things to different groups instead of talk about contribute to help make the world and especially their country whole again."

That was a somewhat unfair comment this early in the political year. But it is a useful réminder of what George tion to the moral necessities of life on an increasingly crowded and discontented achievement of Salvador Allende's government has been a massive expropriation of land. In the six years he was in power Euardo Frei's gov-ernment expropriated 8.9 mil-lion acres; in the last 18 months the present government has expropriated 8.7 million acres.

The presidential address to Congress last May gave some alarming figures about the way the expropriated land is being organized. Most of the Frei was organized either into co-operative societies or three years by the Corpora-tion of Agrarian Reform, with the active participation of the

Under the present government, only one seventh of the expropriated area has been organized at all, which means that millions of acres in the reformed sector are abandoned and have no legal or administrative structure, no means for financing their exploitation or for distributing necessary credits and technical assistance.

It is also becoming clear that the violent seizures of farms by the revolutionary guerrillas are not sporadic, trated peasants. Police By LUCIA SANTA CRUZ records show that between Nov. 1, 1970, and April 5, 1972 there were 1,767 illegal seizures of farms of indiscrin inate size (several as small as a few acres), usually by gangs of Mapuche Indians marginal settlers from the towns ied by the political leaders of the Movement of Revolutionary

Dr. Allende admitted to Congress that 1,700 farms had been illegally seized during his government, but pointed turbing figure as it represent-ed only 0.5 per cent of Chile's total agricultural area.

Because the police have orders not to act against the "young idealists" of the MIR, the farmers feel faced by a breakdown of law and order times taken the law into their own hands by organizing groups to recapture what by law belongs to them. The climate of uncertainty and lack of organization has had serious repercussions on agricultural productivity. In his address to Congress the President announced that agricultural production had increased by 5.8 per cent in 1970-71. However, in order to reach this figure, the indices of agricultural production — since 1965 were altered and the indices for 1970-71 have not been published. It has been announced that in 1972 production will go down by about 50 per cent in in the reformed area.'

It is also possible to draw some conclusions from the amount the government will spend on food imports during 1972. It claims that the bill will not exceed $280-million estimates of the National Society of Agriculture, the bill will amount to $455-million.

Someone to Snarl at Again

It was on a New York Central train, out of New York City, on the evening of the day that Franklin D. Roosevelt died. I was having a drink in the barcar with a prosperous looking business-man, and since I was a Canadian and in uniform, I said that I was sorry that the President was dead.

She said she has had no response to inquiries about a newspaper advertising campaign, sponsored by the department, which indicated there might be a change.

She said she feared that it might mean the government is "fragmenting its efforts" to secure foster homes, a role previously handled by the department of rehabilitation.

Asked if she felt the full page newspaper ads were a prelude to a provincial election similar to a massive advertising expenditure by government departments prior to the 1969 election, Mrs. Gumning said, "I would only have to guess about that. People would have to draw their own conclusions."

fascinating seed and gift shop. Open every day 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

BUTCHART GARDENS — New and excitingly different week after week, season after season. Dedicated gardeners, skilful planning, constant replanting keeps them that way. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired gardens. Embracing over 30 acres, actually six gardens in one — fabulous Sunken, spectacular Ross Fountain Garden, stately Italian, quaint Japanese, the great Stage Show Garden (now in full swing) and the English Rose Garden, especially gorgeous right now!

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIO NIGHT LIGHTING—AS darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, illy ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers — a spectacle so unusual, so grand, it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars."

Identity Search Ends

BRANDON, Man. (CP) -Establishment of the identity of the prairie teacher, essayist and novelist, Frederick Philip Grove, the subject of an extensive literary hunt in the last decade, brings general confirmation from a wide range of people who knew Grove during the years 1912-1929.

Dr. Douglas O. Spettigue of Queen's University announced claims in a recent issue of the Queen's Quarterly that he can prove that Frederick Philip Grove was Felix Paul Greve, a German writer who translated Wilde, Gide, Swift, the early H. G. Wells among othearly H. U. Wells among others and wrote one or two nov-els in German. He enjoyed a close identification with the coterie of international writ-ers in the Andre Gide circle spanning the new century's beginnings and came to Can-ada in 1900 or 1910 under mys-

The check on Grove's autobiography, in Search of Myself, began shortly after his death in 1948 with Dr. Desmond Pacey, author of the first printed monograph on Grove researched during Dr. Pacey's years as head of the English department at Brandon College. None of the claims of, his childhood years spent near Lund, Sweden, could be verified; there was no such name as Grove in the district records, no Thurow Castle, no family remotely resembling his Swedish father and his Scottish mother. The check on Grove's auto-

CHANGED LOCALE

Grove, for some reason, changed the locale of his early years. The rest of his autobiography follows closely the printed facts relative to Felix Paul Greve.

Paris records indicate that Greve was born on the Rusa-Polish border, was eduso-Polish border, was edu-cated at Hamburg, and at the universities of Bonn and Munich. He was a leading writer of the Gide oircle; he had a knowledge of several lan-guages and literatures.

But Felix P. Greve of Paris is said to have died in 1910 or the found it convenient to have his literary friends write his obituary notices while he embarked for Canada under a new name with the same interest. new name with the same initials of his baptism.

One possible explanation of his obituaries in Paris and new life in Canada may lie in the novels and journals of Andre Gide. The French writer in some of his early work played with the idea of a crime committed for sheer. crime committed for sheer thrill-seeking. In one of his journal entries he suggests that one of his friends took the idea seriously and acted on it. The friend might well have been Green Green Crouse. have been Greve-Grove

DOUBTED CLAIMS

Former pupils of Grove in-clude mathematics professor E. A. Birkinshaw at Brandon and retired postmaster at Gladstone, Man., Bruce MacKenzie. Both contend that they had always doubted his claims to a Scandinavian background.

At Winkler, Man., the high school principal produced registers signed with the name Fred Grove for the years 1816-1917. One of his pupils, and later staff associate, Tina Warkentine, still claims, "He Warkentine, still claims, "He was German! He had to be! No one could be born and brought up in Sweden and talk such good German as he did! And he told us his name wasn't Grove, that he had to change it. But he would never say why."

Chief among the researchers was Grove's son, Law-

Chief among the researchers was Grove's son, Law-rence Grove, a Toronto-based corporation lawyer. At the death of Mrs. Grove last Jan. 6, he had expected to find papers relative to his father's early life. But Mrs. Grove left nothing to shed new light on the mystery. She had always

FIREFIGHTERS BURNED BY NORTH VAN HOMER

KELOWNA — A two-run homer by George Lyle in the fourth inning Sunday gave North Vancouver a 2-1 victory over Victoria Firefighters and the British Columbia Senior Babe Ruth baseball championship.

North Vancouver now goes to the regional tournament in Wash., which gets under way next Satur-

North Vancouver went through the Kelowna tourney undefeated. Their victory over Victoria Sunday was the second time they had defeated the Vancouver Island team. North Van belted Victoria 10-1 Wednesday.

Tom Bogue was the winning pitcher and Ray Andre the loser, but Victoria pitcher Mike Finlayson was chosen the tournament's outstanding pitcher and most valuable player. Finlayson pitched two shutouts, both one-hitters. Top batter was Brian Noga of North Vancouver, who had a .545 average, while Victoria catcher Tom Craig was named the most sportsmanlike player.

DEAR ABBY: My parents read your column faithfully, so I hope you will publish this. It's an open letter to Parents of a Single Woman:

Dear Mom and Dad: I'm 26 and single. I live my life day to day, trying to find purpose, peace of mind, a way to conquer loneliness. I'm frightened of being alone, never marrying or having a child, or being labeled a spinster. I'm filled with guilt for disappointing you, not giving you grandchildren, not giving you a chance to say, "My daughter is getting married."

But it takes strength to make it today, and to feel that I am a worthy person—single, but worthy. I'm reasonably happy. Dating sometimes, hurting at other times. I start to think that I am somebody even if I'm not married. They to think that I am somebody even if I'm not married. Message from

As Liberal candidate for Oak Bay in the forthcoming Provincial election I am, like most people in this riding, greatly concerned about labour - management relations in B.C.

In B.C.

The protracted strikes, slowdowns and lockouts which are plaguing workers, management and the public are the direct result of unwise and outdated intervention by the Provincial Cabinate THERE IS NO PLACE IN LABOUR CONFLICTS FOR PARTY POLITICS.

There are faults on both

There are faults on both sides, but the basic trouble lies in labour legislation which gives the Provincial Cabinet authority to enforce compulsory arbitration. It has led to raids upon trade union premises, seizure of documents, actions which have now been ruled illegal by the courts.

Bill 33 which is now Section have now been ruled megaby the courts.

Bill 33 which is now Section
18 of the Mediation Act should be amended to eliminate intervention by the Cabinet. Imposition of compulsory arbitration is and should be the business of the entire legislation, not merely the Cabinet members..

Furthermore, to remove any trace of "politics" or "politicking" labour legislation of this kind, particularly dealing with compulsion, should be made a non-party or open debate in the legislature. Such a course would ensure the protection of the public interest and freedom from the pressure of partyline politics.

I also believe that union line politics.

I also believe that union leaders should have the authority from membership to finalize agreements which have been worked out across the bargaining table. The inability of union negotiators to conclude bargaining makes all agreements tentative until approved by membership vote. Often this leads to management withholding its best offer and thus protracting negotiations.

Noted Surgeon Retires at Home

MAPLE BAY — Last month Sir Phillip Livingston, 79, well-known eye specialist in the Cowichan Valley, decided he had done enough work for one life and retired.

Dr. Livingston, who is a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England and Ed-inburgh, has been practising on Vancouver Island for the past 20 years.

He came directly to Cow-tohan Bay, his place of birth, after he retired from The Reyal Air Force in 1951.

Livingston ended his career as director general of the RAF medical services. He received a knighthood for medi-cal research he did in war years in 1950 and was made a companion of Order of the

during the war mainly in-volved the importance of vi-sion in flying with special concentraton on night flying vi-

He concentrated most of his study as eye physician and surgeon on eye muscles and defects. He was written many 'papers on the topic.

Now that he has given up his busy practise, Sir Phillip, who lives at his waterfront home on Beaumont Avenue, Maple Bay, plans to keep busy attending parties with retired doctor's favorite hob-bies since 1915, when he was the first Canadian to ever row for Cambridge University. Sir Phillips finds rowing his 12-foot boat around the bay a good way of physical develop-

His greatest interest is writing. Fringe of the Clouds, written by Livingston on his career touching mainly on his service in the RAF while in India, Iraq and the two world wars, is on display at the Duncan branch of the Vancouver Island Regional Library.

The second book he hopes to write will be aimed at "waking people up and not leaving them in the groove." Sir Plul-lip says he objects to people's lack of consideration for each people aware of this. He plans to use a resume of his world experience as the theme of the book.

He was born at Cowichan Bay in 1893, two years after his father immigrated from England.

His father was general manager of the Tyee Copper Company and smelter at Ladysmith in the early 1900's.

When I had said When Livingston was 14 his father died. Three years later he and his mother moved to England where he could be educated as a doctor. Livingston said he had to study 10 hours a day for two years to bring his education up to the standard of English

When I arrived there at 17 my education was equivalent to English school boys at 14," youth fishing and catching game and learning very lit-tle." I had to study very hard Livingston entered Jesus College at Cambridge in 1912 but his career was interrupted two years later when he joined the Royal Navy as surgeon sub-lieutenant in the Eight West. First World War.

Two years later he returned to the London hospital where he finished his medical training as general practitioner and served as a house sur-geon to Sir Hugh Rigby, sur-geon to the royal family.

He joined the RAF in 1920 as a flight-lieutenant medical officer to study flying but not intending to join the service.

"I became so deeply interested in the air arm that I put medical officers to join the RAF," he said. While in the forces, he at-

"Hi, It's Louise! Listen, remember when you told me that my hair looked lovely, at the party last night? Well, I'm confessing. It's a wig. Isn't it super? It's made of Elura fibre, and it's so light, I honestly forget I'm wearing it. You know I got so fed up with having to go to the hairdresser every time I wanted to look nice. Then I saw this ad in the paper. Simpsons-Sears is having a fashion wig clearance. I thought I'd try some on, just for fun. Well, I found a style that was really me. The heipful saleslady said I could shampoo it, and it's easy to re-style. Why don't you go down to Simpsons-Sears? They've got all kinds of wigs in easy-care fibres. All On Sale! Buy a couple. Training Seeing-Eye Dogs

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Recently, when I was at a meeting at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., I visited with my dear friends, Dr. and Mrs. J. Grafton Love. Mrs. Love has seen a column I wrote recently about seeing eye dogs. She introduced me to her friend, John L. Sinykin, who long ago started breeding and training German Shepherds to be used as guides for the blind.

Mr. Sinykin's interest in this work was aroused one day when he helped a blind man get off a Pullman car. It distressed him greatly when he saw that there was no one at the station to meet the blind man and to take him where he wanted to go. Later, Mr. Sinykin found a German man who knew of efforts that were being made to train dogs to fight or to search for people.

In 1926, Mr. Sinykin, whose hobby was breeding German Shepherds, began to devote himself to developing a German Shepherd for the very difficult task of serving as "his master's eyes." He started with a fine dog from Germany, one who was easily trainable. Later, he got in touch with U.S. Senator Schall of Minnesota who had lost his sight. Mr. Sinykin was able to present the very first guide dog trained in America, Lux of La Salle, to the Senator.

The La Salle German Shepherds have become recognized as having the fine qualities necessary for their important job. In having the fine qualities necessary for their important job. In 1926, Mr. Sinykin organized "His Master's Eyes Institute." With personal funds, along with funds given by various service clubs and generous persons, he began to train dogs for the blind. Later, the great Alexander Woolcott gave a talk about the dogs which brought in $64,000 from kindly hearers of the message. Today, there is in Minneapolis the Master Eye Foundation of America, a non-profit organization.

It is interesting to learn how a dog is selected as a Guide Dog. The Master Eye Foundation people have written, "As a young puppy, he is continually watched to determine whether he has the traits necessary. Early in his life, training starts, but it is not until he is 15 months old that a decision is made as to whether he has the necessary characteristics. At that time, a concentrated training program, taking from four to eight months, is started."

Then, when a blind person has been selected to receive a dog, the person must spend from three to four weeks learning how to handle the dog. The person is taught how to travel with his guided dog on busy streets; on buses, in restaurants and hotels. He also learns how to care for, feed, and groom the dog. He receives the dog, and the training, at no charge.

In a pamphlet from the Master Eye Foundation, I find a list of suggestions for the person who would like to assist someone with a guide dog. They say that one should always ask a blind person if he wants help before rushing to grab his arm. They also say to approach on the blind person's right side, and offer him your left elbow.

Fallers and Scalers: A Personal Opinion

Sooke area, said in an interview it is necessary to have someone other than a faller "walking around keeping a close eye for the faller.

"This has been the scaler in most camps. The taller the timber, the further away the faller must work from the other faller, about 2½ tree lengths apart.

"All fallers have a whistle to blow if they are injured but that is not a guarantee you are going to be rescued.

ing to lower the accident rate and so is the industry. What is being said now will contribute to more accidents."

The opposite view has been given by Weldon Jubenville, president of the Duncan Local of the International Wood-workers of America, and a will lead to safer conditions.

Gillespie replies that most accidents in falling are caused by "aggravation," mostly between the faller and the builbucker (foreman) at the beginning and the end of the beginning and the end of

Because the were only verbal agreements, there were many arguments over the rate. What the fallers want is a written down and standardized piece-rate.

"May be a few accidents have concerned a man wanting to keep his average up, but the majority fall under the heading of aggravation," said Gillespie, adding that falling is a dangerous occupation to begin with.

He said both the day rate and the piece-rate systems so day rates could remain in these cases.

BIG MONEY Gillespie was asked about the big money fallers are re-puted to earn.

He said a faller can earn, in prime stands of timber, $125 to $175 a day but there would be many days when he could not work because of weather conditions, including wind and

Campbell, on slow recovery from a bout of pneumonia, was not in his office today but he had said from the begin-ning of the hearing in June that an early decision would not be forthcoming.

The hearing is a test case for this type of hearing, which was established about two years ago and had not been tried until the Gabriola case

Campbell held the hearing personally after Gabriola Wildwood Estates Ltd. ap-pealed the decision in April of the Nanaimo regional board to disallow the company's plans for a 550-lot subdivision

The company contended that the subdivision should be allowed as long as all technical plans were within the zoning rules for the area.

Klassen was taken to nospital with slight injuries following the crash.

Speeds during the chase were estimated to have reached 60 miles per hour in the morning's shopping traffic. But the development permit is of a special kind that requires a land use contract be-tween the company and the

Perennial Gems Worth Planting

BY HILDA BEASTALL

In the search for perennials not requiring frequent lifting for division, two very lovely plants often occur to me.

They haven't been recommended for two reasons — difficulty in obtaining and establishing the plants and later, strangely enough, controlling the encroaching habits of the Romneya coulteri (California Canyon-poppy) and Alstromeria aurantiaca (Peruvian-iily) are two of the most controversial perennials on any list for single lot gardens.

Those who have grown both, know their beauty and usefulness in garden decoration and as cut flowers.

Romneya is the huge papery white poppy with a golden mass of stamens. Fragrance equal to that of the most perfumed roses is freely given off during the four-month period of blooming.

of blooming.

The plants are massive once established, growing to five and six feet with splended grey-green leaves and strong stems. Usually dying back to near ground level before spring, new growth is freely made as soon as the soil warms, perhaps in late May.

This brings the first flowering to about early July.

Underground roots are strong growers but almost completely devoid of root hairs, making them all but impossible to propagate by division.

This is exasperating when we see Romneya thrusting its woody roots out into gravel driveways, beneath blacktop and cement walks to send up flourishing leafy stems many yards from its original site.

cement walks to send up flourishing leafy stems many yards from its original site.

Two solutions are offered. Both have been used successfully, here. One is the transplanting of a really large root-clump in early September if the soil is heavy, in late May if sandy. If a choice of sites is available, give it a graveily, sunny, well draimed spot.

A small portion in the centre of the clump may be sufficiently undisturbed to carry on.

* * *

The second method is to obtain viable, fresh seed of Ronmeya coulteri from a southern source, and hope for a few seedlings.

meya coulters from a southern source, and hope for a tew seedlings.

Alstromeria aurantiaca is a deeply rooting 18-inch high perennial with leafy stems bearing clusters of orange-colored blossoms like small lilies. When used as cut flowers, they last three to four weeks in the house.

The tuberous roots go down into hardpan making them hard to find, though they travel around and stems come up where you don't want them in a small garden.

With a space to themselves, even as a base for the tall Romneyas, the lovely Alstromerias are certainly worth having.

The Ligtu hybrid strain in shades of pink and red are less invasive and shallower rooting but lacking in the graceful charm of the old Alstromeria aurantiaca.

Within the realm of "blind Within the realm of "blind apots," today's deal is considered to be a classic hand. When it arose in a rubberbridge game some years ago, our South declarer developed a blind spot — and it cost him his contract. Can you isolate South's aberration and bring it to light?

South's jump to three no-trump on his rebid was a poor call, since he had available to call, since he had available to him a forcing jump to three spades. Fortunately for him, however, North had the A-K of diamonds to compensate for South's deficiency in this suit, with the result that the three-notrump contract was an excellent one.

Upon winning West's dia-mond lead with dummy's king, declarer promptly led a low spade and inserted his queen. West took this trick with his ace and returned another diamond, driving out the board's ace and South's queen. When declarer next played dummy's remaining spade, he received the sad news that all he could make in spades were two tricks. When play had ended, de-clarer had made eight tricks, two in each suite. Where did

Without any doubt declarer got a bad break when he ran into a 4-1 division of the five outstanding spades. They figure to be divided 3-3; and had they been so divided, declarer, as he played the hand, would have made five spade tricks, and a total of 11 in all. Nevertheless, declarer mis-played the hand.

Upon winning the opening diamond lead, declarer's plays at tricks two and three should have been to cash the board's ace and king of clubs. With both opponents following suit to these two leads, it would now have become a routine matter to lead a third club, conceding the trick to club, conceding the trick to the opposition (East, in the actual setup). With dummy's

Had both opponents not fol-lowed suit to the leads of the ace and king of clubs, then the spade suit would be at-tacked. Thus the spade suit should have been a last re-sort, and not a first choice.

CHICAGO (AP) - Profittaking in the closing minutes trimmed an early 2½ cents gain in wheat futures on the Board of Trade today.

Soybeans, up more than 2 cents early in the session, closed on an irregular tone. Soybean oil and meal prices also were irregular.

also were irregular.

Buying in the wheat pit turned active after reports that heavy weekend rains had allowed down the harvesting of the wheat crop in the central portion of the U.S.

There also was some buying attributed to improved ex-ports and a generally bullish attitude in the trade about wheat futures.

General manager Dave Titerton said today the AMS invested. $6,000 in the co-op experiment at 1225 Hillside, half as a direct grant and half as a loan. $2,250 is still outstanding.

The AMS was not directly involved in the co-op, Titerton explained, but was simply one more creditor to the Vancouver Island Co-operative Residence Association formed by a group of students late in

The association has fallen apart, the house been aban-doned and the founders drifft-ed away," Titerton said, "and ed away," Titerton said, "and now we have no way of col-lecting the debt."

cently retained by the AMS, valued the house at $20,000 provided the interior was re-decorated, necessary repairs tax and utility bills paid.

No loan payments or bills on the house have been paid since the last residents "drifted away" in February, Titer ton said.

"I'll therefore recommend to the AMS that they assume the debt. I'm sure the CMHA will foreclose on the mortgage

"The co-op just wasn't or-ganized enough," Titerton ex-plained, "it was never fully together and people didn't re-ally co-operate. "

"It was an experiment and it didn't work out very well-in that form at least."

Part of the trouble comes from a curious chemistry which sometimes bubbles up between man and animals.
Many people like animals.
Some love them like children. Then there are the fanatics, whose devotion to animals grows to a passion which leaves room for little else.

Mrs. Galisky and Chowen freely admit to being "rather kooky about animals."

After the boarding kennel three months, they began to take in pels whose owners didn't want them any longer.

Q Kennels became not just boarding operation but an where people could get a pet for whatever they caired to do-nate provided they passed muster with the operators.

Chowen estimates Q Kennels has found homes for close to 2,000 pets. (While there was no charge, he calculates only about half a dozen people failed to make home sort of contribution didn't think they would provide adequate homes.

"You get a feeling about them," Chowen says. But the family of homeless animals kept growing because Mrs. Galisky and Chowen share one rigid rule with a more famous predecessor, Mother Cecilia. They will not have any animal destroyed.

No matter how sick or use it is, they make room for it.

SPCA HATED

This stand has produced in them nothing short of hatred for the local Society for Pre-vention of Cruelty to Animals, where pets which aren't adopted are put down.

"We simply feel 17 animals a day being destroyed in Vic-toria (which they claim is the not necessary," says Chowen. "Thefe are lots of poorer-homes where the kids would just love a pet. We're simply trying to provide them for

There's no way these families can pay the $22.50 the SPCA charges for a female wen's favorite pet, because it has been two publicized in-cidents authored by the chimp which, the operators say, have doomed Q Kennels. Chowen says it was newspaper publicity which has driven Mrs. Galisky right out of business.

Last November Jose snatched a puppy at the ken-nels from its mother and hid it on top of a fence eight feet above the ground. The pup, which suffered cuts and a broken leg, wasn't found for six

The SPCA, armed with a adopted in a later court ac-tion the SPCA got a judgment against the kennel operators for the vet's bill.

Then last month Jose es-caped from his roomy enclo-sure, forcing his way through sure, forcing his way through sure, forcing his way through the wire, and bit a girl passing the house on her way community, including Vichome from school.

nearest thing to hit him with. It was a hammer. The blow proved fatal.

Admitting to a hot temper, Chowen says he loved the chimp and bawled like a haby when it died.

Since then, Mrs. Galisky says a lot of people have come to the door and called

Only a few animals have been brought to the kennel for boarding since Jose died. In the past few weeks the operators have had to turn away animals brought to be kept

There are faults on both sides, but the basic trouble lies in labour legislation which gives the Provincial Cabinet authority to enforce compulsory arbitration. It has led to raids upon trade union premises, seizure of documents, actions which have now been ruled illegal by the courts.

Bill 33 which is now Section 18 of the Mediation Act should be amended to eliminate intervention by the Cabinet. Imposition of compulsory arbitration is and should be the business of the entire legislation, not merely the Cabinet members.

Furthermore, to remove

legislation, not merety the Cabinet members.

Furthermore, to remove any trace of "politics" or "politicking" labour legislation of this kind, particularly dealing with the compulsion, should be made a non-party or open debate in the legislature. Such a course would ensure the protection of the public interest and freedom from the pressure of partyline politics.

I also believe that union leaders should have the authority from membership to finalize agreements which have been worked out across, the bargaining table. The inability of union negotiators to conclude bargaining makes all agreements tentative until approved by membership vote. Often this leads to management withholding its best ofter and thus protracting negotiators and the second contraction of the co

Jim Gillespie is a faller who worries about more accidents occurring because of the day rate wage system than under the piece-rate system.

He also scoffs at suggestions that the fallers are left-tions that the salers are lett-wing or Communist.

'They are free en-terprisers,' he said.

Gillespie, who falls in the Sooke area, said in an inter-view it is necessary to have someone other than a faller "walking around keeping a close eye for the faller.

"This has been the scaler in most camps. The taller the timber, the further away the fealer must never from the faller must work from the other faller, about 2½ tree lengths apart.
"All fallers have a whistle to blow if they are injured but that is not a guarantee you are going to be rescued.

3 LIFELINES

"Many times you cannot hear the other faller's saw. So. the scaler has been a lifeline to the faller here. The Work-men's Compensation Board and the government are wanting to lower the accident rate and so is the industry. What is to more accidents."

The opposite view has been given by Weldon Jubenville, president of the Duncan Local of the International Wood-of the International Woods-workers of America, and a former faller.

Jubenville said it is only human nature, under an in-centive system, to take chances and that the day rate

Gillespie replies that most have been employed in the accidents in falling are past Scaling was not feasible under certain conditions, such mostly between the faller and as decayed or small timber,

Because the piece-rates were only verbal agreements, there were many arguments over the rate. What the fallers want is a written down and standardized piece-rate.

"May be a few accidents have concerned a man wanting to keep his average up, but the majority fall under the bullbucker (foreman) at so day rates could remain in the beginning and the end of these cases.

Gillespie was asked about the big money fallers are re-puted to earn.

He said a faller can earn, in prime stands of timber, $125 to $175 a day but there would be many days when he could not work because of weather conditions, including wind and the heading of aggravation," said Gillespie, adding that falling is a dangerous occupation to begin with.

He said both the day rate and the piece-rate systems to head of money was "unheard of" on southern Vancouver Island, and he said the average fallers annual gross moome along the coast was $11,000 or a little more.

One Week to Crush IRA

Times News Services.

A militant Protestant spokesman in Belfast said today the British army has one week to wipe out the IRA - or else.

If troops fail to meet the ultimatum, the spokesman for the Ulster Defence Association said, his group will institute its own solution to the strife that has seen 469 persons die in

The strategy would be simple: "We will send teams into Roman Catholic areas and kill every IRA man we find."

He told a midnight news conference the UDA knows the identity of the bombers and gunmen and would eliminate them in "seek and destroy operations."

The threat came after the Provisional Wing of the IRA

The UDA spokesman declined to say whether his group was responsible for any of the weekend murders.

The news conference was called in a Protestant neighborhood of Belfast and the spokesman appeared wearing a mask and carrying a pistol on his hip.

In reaction to the Friday blasts, troops continued to search IRA strongholds, uncovering an explosives factory and arresting 100 suspects.

A British spokesman said the factory, believed to have been used to make the Friday bombs, contained 400 pounds of explosives, 45 detonators, three bombs, 1,000 bullets and a

British Ports Closed

LONDON (AP) - Striking longshoremen shut down all major British ports today to protest the arrest of five London dockers. Thousands of workers in other key industries walked out in sympathy, propelling the country towards its first general strike since 1926.

By mid-day most of the country's 42,000 dockers had joined the stoppage that began Friday in London, Liverpool and Hull. Longshoremen in Southampton, Manchester, Glasgow, Bristol, Swansea, Ipswich and other ports walked out Miners, printers, car work-ers cand truck drivers also went on strike today in a massive show of support for the five longshoremen jailed Friday for illegal picketing in a London dockhand dispuite.

It was the first order to jail workers given by Britain's n e w Industrial Relations Court set up under a con-troversial strike-control law that was enacted earlier this year.
